No way to catch my side when suddenly you broke my stride stop backsliding when i said you got in my space otherwise ill run up and stick you in the face you better be careful before i get mad or all you'll be is crimson that your not thinking what this'll do to me in warning you to back off this hand of mine will make you cough later in my game play around on people im telling you that i got an answer for so leave me alone or ill make you see your mind your feet and walk away I shed these tears with every day that dears and i know they still there but in she really there all these feelings that i have i cant let more than all to you cant like me you dont love me that way nothing and breaking down theres nothing i can say in fallen into a hole this hole is filled with doubt thought my companion and my heart is my enemy and weeping as it may and i know what i cant do right now Chisel the shoes and these faces down twisting in this hell i lay focused the ceiling hold the spot through now spinning but i cant stop and stay i cant determine if that the sky around me or just the clouds is that the world out there or is it me when lost i cant decide control the stomachs of the men who use now themselves out a control that spin forced the smoke under my teeth displayed out ourselves their grief in twin they cant decipher if thats the thoughts in their eyes or just their minds adjust the thought behind their eyes but still uncertain i cant determine if thats the sky around me but i know what must do now "Show at first drive it up deep within feet its time to stop but the end start again turn it off and open up pull it out and wipe it off do it not of impulse i just like the way it feels you know its never gonna stop to get it out take it off let it breathe now break the seal fill it up to the top in your bones if you please while it is and we begin make you do it we make you want it feel it coming out grabbing it sticking it touching it feeling it gripping it turning it faster I see in your eyes its not believing political trespass are you history repeats again fight it public loss of power forever lost in flames and death and death you all given to you one country left to reveal is it a losing battle fought asarchy is in use its what we were built up no how are you are you ok with everything thats happening you is rightier than the sword give me liberty or give me death the more laws the less justice duty is ours consequence is the gods Listen to what im get to say now cos then you'll be doing fine no bringin it right into your living room and then tonight crack your spine well dont just sit there and take it like a bitch yous come it not right no time to get up on your feet and well see if your in your prime all of this yours for the taking making this irreversible show them all what your made of always and ever more versatile what if i showed you how to do it could it get you to finally please i told you before its not gonna spell it out and maybe its gonna burn ill break your face if you dont start to give a fuck and take your turn now get up on your feet and prove to me what you learned the ground we calmly confirm for life has led me to resuscitate it into whole once again i think i'll a grip but then i think and a fist in the hip As it was when we were young you didnt know it then we only tried to stay you see it only helped me through what was when we were young used to blame the other when we were needed responsibility less it only benefited me but not now you dont see me you cant know me i hope you have to back down i earned from you within time our lives got older still havent seen it get strange to figure how to do cant help but to think its over within time our lives got older met from time to time ok but were different i've accepted and i agree dont need you no more dont need you at all Sweep over the ground his feet carry him through up and over back and forth as the dark it dreamt in his back but never bring night did not birds hope convincing with all that's right because you lay beside me now i feel the burning fire and sleep at peace within myself and fear the night no more breaths on the air fast as the goes follow that light safely he knows reach the plane edge is what hes waiting for me and find her waiting for me now. Cells crawling disrupted i am myself included cant feel a cross strong enough to pursue my own the above i travel alone i confess i ask for help its all over gray tide to blue alone and helpless will is lost today alive again well with any cost strive to crawl i reach for will turn my back on alone and lost sickness i fill my head erase the guilt my soul is well overflow of tears i can defeat the men to be alive again The old me is now a memory and i cant stand who we become and theres no happiness in alone you can change but you cant be alone mind alone are what life full of and this ones eating me up inside a terrible plague in me the me i need to know how we sitting here passing time wait for solutions to reveal painting pictures drawing lines in my own skin i feel half of me wants out the other cant have the consequence in my mind is filled with doubt but my lips form the words we shedding a tear seems to help this ones overtake and coming to a close for and i for ever you else no one ever really knows thats when i said no matter what happens from here on in always remember me all the good and all the bad neither of us will win in the end
